GOULD ACADEMY NOTES

On Sunday evening, Feb. 21, there will be a community service in the William Bingham Gymnasium under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. Girl Reserves of Gould Academy. The special feature of this service is a play entitled "There Is A Lad Here." The theme of the play centers about the Bible story of the leaves and Ashes. About twenty girls are in the cast including representatives from each of the four churches in town. Special music is being prepared and the girls are working hard to make this an attractive service.

Mr. H. S. Gregory of Berlin, N. H., and Mr. Arthur Brown of Mechanic Falls were guests of their sons on Saturday and attended the Carnival.

Miss Nellie Whitman spent Saturday at her home in South Paris.

In accordance with the new health policy adopted at Gould Academy those students who have physical weaknesses or defects have been assigned to special classes for corrective work which will take the place of the regular Friday gymnasium classes.

It is possible to preserve perfect form or posture of any machine only by bending or stretching all joints, springs, muscles, etc., freely on both sides of their fundamental positions. For instance, a tree will only remain straight if the wind blows it equally on both sides of its straight position.

The human body also follows this fundamental law of posture. Gravity is the main force which pulls man down ward, tends to increase all natural curves of the spine and bend hip, knee and ankle joints. Gravity tends there fore to shorten:

1. All muscles on the contralateral side of the spinal column.

2. The neck muscles.

3. The muscles of the chest and back.

4. The muscles of the arms and legs.

5. The muscles of the feet.

6. The muscles of the hands.

7. The muscles of the fingers.

8. The muscles of the toes.

9. The muscles of the ankles.

10. The muscles of the knees.

11. The muscles of the hips.

12. The muscles of the pelvis.

13. The muscles of the thighs.

14. The muscles of the calves.

15. The muscles of the feet.

16. The muscles of the hands.

17. The muscles of the fingers.

18. The muscles of the toes.

19. The muscles of the ankles.

CHURCH ACTIVITIES

Chapman Street
Services Sunday morning at 10:45. Subject of the lesson sermon, Soul. Sunday School at 10 o'clock.

METHODIST CHURCH
Rev. C. B. Oliver, Minister
The mid-week worship hour remains at 7:30 in winter and summer. If this is not a vital institution then we are mistaken in the source of strength and the Bible does not mean "Forasmuch as the assembling of yourselves together."

On account of the basketball game on Friday evening the choir rehearsal will be Thursday evening. Give those people who sing real encouragement and appreciation. Their salary is so high that they do not need extra attention but kindness in the form of genuine interest is always good manners. "Thank you" once in a while will help them to sing better.

The Church School meets at 8:45. The Juniors have a set of Junior books for boys. The Junior Librarian will be elected Thursday night at Wilbert Bartlett's.

Sunday, February 21, the morning worship will be at 10:45. The minister will speak on "Followers of the Glean." "The gleaming halo is the ever-lasting real." Prof. Albert Knudson, Epworth League, 6:15-7:15.

"There Is A Lad Here" will be given at the William Bingham Gymnasium at 7:30 Sunday evening.

The ladies of the church are making plans to spend the day next week at West Bethel.

Next Sunday special patriotic services will be held at the church. Brown Relief Corps, No. 36, has accepted the invitation of the minister of this church to attend the service to a body. GEORGE WASHINGTON
Born February 22, 1732
"The defender of his country, The founder of liberty
The friend of man."

A portrait of George Washington, painted on iron by the famous early American painter, Gilbert Stuart, the first of his kind ever found or known to exist in the possession of Albert Rosenthal, art collector and connoisseur of Philadelphia. The portrait never before has been out of the possession of the Tilyard family of England. The portrait, which is one of the richest direct discoveries of some years, is of the type known as the Vaughn or Gibbs type, showing the right side of the face.

Washington
EQUAL when fields were lost or fields were won, With breath of popular applause or blame, Not fanned or damped, unquenchably the same, Too inward to be reached by laws of this life. Soldier and statesman, great untiring, High-spirited example of great duties done, Steady as breathing a world's honors won. As high as different gifts to all men have, Thrilled by himself, unless it were to find, But for his barefoot soldiers' respect, Tramped the snow to coral where they tried. Held by his own hollow-eyed content, Modest yet firm as nature's self un-tilted, Save by the men his nobler temper shared, Never seduced through show of present good. By order then unsending lights to steer, Neomedusa in heaven, nor than his steady march, More steady, far from rashness as from fear, Right, but with himself first, grasping still. In overless pulse the wave-beat helm of will, Not battered then or now because he would. Thereafter, but that he still would. Head unshaken, higher-souled, there it is, Who was a soldier and a man of men's Washington. —Lowell

Washington's Remarkable Foresight
Washington's services fully entitled him to be called "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." But these distinctions, due as he part to the Revolution and as President of the newly formed republic, have overshadowed a phase of his life that deserves careful consideration. Few persons are aware of the service he rendered in conducting the external commerce of the country, and of his foresight in the problem of securing credit among the states. Henry Jackson writes in the Philadelphia Record:

At the end of the Revolution the common danger that had been so potent in binding the several states in common action was removed, and the contemporary history states: "A farther dangerous disposition on the part of some of the members of the country to go to pieces in a procedure that would have led to an easy reconquest by Great Britain. The most powerful influence in the course of nature to the economic end. The very same states composing the original thirteen did not take entirely corresponding reference and naturally, changing their location, showed an unwillingness to surrender local advantages for the general good. Perhaps on striking an instance of the operation of this law will be found in the attitude of the people of the area now included in the state of Vermont. The treaty of peace with Great Britain, which acknowledged the independence of the United States, enumerated each state as sovereign and granted also the territory west of New Hampshire. Many of the residents of this area, however, regarded their best interests to be with Canada, because the outlet to the sea was through the waters that led to the St. Lawrence river. Railroads were not thought of at that time. Among the leaders of the party that declared against entering the United States was Ethan Allen, the famous patriot, and his two brothers. Active resistance to inclusion of the state was threatened, but it came to naught and the "Green Mountain" state was duly admitted as the fourteenth state.

Set Duty Before Pride
George Washington was elected as president of the convention that drew up the Constitution because he was the last of the people. He had the confidence of the new nation and his dignity and strength of character commanded the general respect as did that of an older man of the time. Washington was painfully conscious that his scholarship was inferior to that of many of his associates and he realized that he was but an indifferent politician. In his hand the sword was lighter than the pen. That he was a soldier convinced that it was his duty to take part in this work, he accepted.

Washington's Hair a Gift
A lock of George Washington's hair, included in a capital medalion, was ceremoniously presented to the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association in the will of Benjamin Bache, signer, reformer and founder of the City Club of New York. The tradition with regard to the association of the hair with the daughter of a partner of Washington's, who was the association of Mr. Bache's son, Mr. Bache's great-grandson, Elias Bache, not served on Washington's staff.

New Scientific Light on Plant Intelligence
An intoxicated carrot has convinced Sir Jagadis Chandra Bose, the British plant physiologist, that plants have intelligence.
Sir Jagadis is more than ever convinced that trees fall in love just as human beings do, as a result of his latest experiments. The intelligence of plants, he says, approaches the instinctive intelligence of the lower forms of animals. He bases his conclusions on observation of the injection of alcohol, chloroform, carbonic acid and other chemicals into living plants. He also has looked into arborescent amours on the spot.
Trees apparently select other trees nearly as objects of affection, Sir Jagadis said in an interview. "Trees thus smitten send out tendrils to enfold the objects of their affection."
By injections, Sir Jagadis said he was able to make a carrot drunk or to make it lose consciousness. Plant fibers really are muscles, he contends.

Secretary Mellon at a Washington reception said of a sensational statistic: "His figures are so amazingly precise that you incline to doubt them. 'Where do you get the two?' 'I've been here two,' said the planter. 'It was sixty thousand when I came.'"

THE J. E. JONES LETTER

"SPOKESMAN" IS A MYSTERY

For long years it has been the rule in Washington that the President must never be quoted by newspapermen. Formerly there were "authorized" statements from the White House, and other ways of disclosing the news. During the past few months the "Spokesman" for the White House has been disclosing the news in such a straightforward way that Congressmen say that the President himself is the spokesman. It is a pretty little mystery, even in Washington, because the type of newspapermen who interview the men at the White House are ethically sound.

OBEDIENT TO CALVIN

First summer when the coal strike started, the news from the Summer Capital at Washington was the effect that President Coolidge was not going to permit the strike to happen. But it did happen, and the President indicated a "hands off" policy. Apparently he has been the only man in the country not interested in the coal strike. Therefore he received a distinct shock when the Senate by a vote of 52 to 21 passed a resolution asking the President to call the operators and miners to Washington for a conference. Within an hour there was a big "no" heard at the White House. But even Presidents sometimes react to the process of changing their minds and the following day the instructions from the Executive Mansion. However, Pennsylvania authorities are out of the economic picture for the winter, and most people who are familiar with the situation believe that orders to Calvin were a little late.

VOTELESS

Washington, D. C., is a city of nearly a half million inhabitants all of whom have no vote, unless they retain their legal residence somewhere in the States. A constant agitation has been going on for years to secure the right of suffrage for the people who live under the Dome of the Capitol. Under the pretext that the Federal City should be ruled by Congress and not by local city officials, Washington residents to be a reservation of non-voters. But the larger cause has recently been championed by a Democrat in Washington that the Federal City should be elective. At the present time the House is appointed by judges of District courts, who are appointed by the President of the United States. It is a fact that the National Capital is not to be given any degree of self-government beyond that which exists through the administration of a Board of three commissioners, who do everything, usually included in the functions of mayor, officers, etc.

ON THE AIR

A number of Congressmen are going today to take each work in Washington, and the broadcasting stations are going to broadcast a number of public affairs on the air. By the time another election comes on and each takes up his own business, the broadcast of all political parties, and this will give the public a better chance than ever before to get first hand information and the "inside" of politics.

THE FARMERS

It gives them up its words several weeks ago and told the farmers they would have nothing they wanted. When different farm groups began to articulate their demands it was found that they were wide apart and now "congress" retires. "What's wanted, gentlemen?"

TO TALK TO THE PEOPLE

Senator Borah will lead a discussion of amendments against entry into the World Court and it is expected that he will have a good deal to say against British preferential treatment of voting strength in the League of Nations. The United States Senate has apparently stated the reasons for as the World Court is concerned. Evidently the distinguished Senator from Idaho believes that the next step in our international affairs will be a move in the direction of joining the League of Nations. The real purpose of Borah going back to the people will be to arouse sentiment against the League.

TAX PUNISHMENT

The tax penalty law was given a fine and a case test in the American newspaper and the sentiment of the people was considerably against the law. The publication of long lists of names and the amounts of the tax due. A group has been organized to help the public in understanding the law and in paying no more than the law requires. The group is now in the market for the best of our customers. Write to us for our catalog.

THE SCANDAL REASON

A number of Senators have been up and down the road towards starting up a scandal.

some sort of a scandal in public matters. But they have not succeeded because the public mind seems to be entirely immune when it comes to such minor affairs as the control of a few Government departments or bureaus by Mr. Mellon's aluminum trust. The country used to turn over and howl at disclosures far less important than those that have been sprung during the present scandal season.

OLD CUSTOMS

Congress is in a serious mood, and it spends its days in disputes about taxes, the tariff, and similar profound questions. But the lighter side of life has been having its innings in Washington and a series of receptions have been given by President Coolidge to which thousands of the best citizens have been invited. In the homes, hotels and public places of Washington, the social side of life has presented a democratic atmosphere. The Coolidges have done a great deal towards breaking down class distinctions among the official set, because they are thoroughly "home people." Mrs. Coolidge has participated actively in church and social welfare programs. She has gone to some of the settlement houses and to institutions like the Salvation Army and the Young Women's Christian Association, to help them with the work that they are doing. On the whole, all classes of people come closer to "rubbing elbows" in Washington than in any period of our recent national life. Therefore, it is not at all strange, that even old time soldiers, who have been coming to the Capital by the dozens, are accorded a gracious reception every time that they have showed up to give an entertainment.

LIMITED DEBATE

The United States Senate has worked out its own methods for limited debate without the necessity of amending its rules. Perhaps Mr. Vice President Dawes has talked himself out of the issue that he has created. Dawes may be a first class man at the head of the majority table in a bank directors room, but it is noticeable that he does not keep a good order in the Senate as his predecessors did. He raps for order occasionally after some Senator on the floor has suggested it.

SCHOOL NOTES

were built on State plans, modified to suit our local needs and ideas.

During this time other towns in this district have also had a building program. All of Greenwood's buildings except one have been remodeled for sanitation and fuel room, and mostly painted inside and out. The building at Bladegoe is waiting until the future of the school is more definitely known. Mason's building has been painted outside and in, and remodeled for sanitation and fuel room. Gilad's school house has been reshingled and painted and will soon be remodeled for sanitation and fuel room.

A summary of school costs has recently been received from the State Department, from which the following figures are quoted:

Tax rates for all purposes, municipal, Bethel .036, Greenwood .046, Gilad .038, Mason .027, average for State, .042.

Tax rates for schools purposes, Bethel .0106, Greenwood .01207, Gilad .0077, Mason .0062, average for State, .0115.

In Bethel about one dollar in five goes for school conveyance. In the State as a whole about one dollar in seven.

Under the present State School Fund Law some school conveyances are aided by the State. None of the towns in this district get any help from the State for this purpose, but some of our State tax goes to help other towns that do get this aid.

The State Grange has gone on record in favor of an amendment to the State School Fund Law so that all towns will be treated alike for doing the same service. Another bill will be introduced in the next legislature and someone found to put it, backed by a wider understanding of the working of the present law.
